StackLeaps × Andy's Brokerage

60 days. Done-for-you outreach and booked calls with shippers who move contracted, repeating freight - the kind that sends loads every day, not the kind that re-quotes you every morning.

Where you stand

What you already have

- Ten years brokering out of Miami - flatbed is ~75% of what you move
- Deep carrier capacity on Florida lanes - trucks you can call anytime
- Proven out-of-state lanes: NY-Miami, and Wisconsin / Illinois-Laredo
- A cement-plant account on contracted rates that sends loads nearly every day

The opportunity

Your words: the rest of the book quotes you today, and "if our rate doesn't work, they move on with another broker." That's a business where the rate is the only thing you compete on.

We go find more accounts that look like the cement plant - standing volume, agreed pricing, loads that just arrive.

PROOF · THE ENGINE THAT BOOKED OUR CALL

"You replied to a cold email and booked a call with a stranger in under an hour. That is the product."

NUMBERS FROM THE SAME ENGINE RUN FOR OUR OWN COMPANY, BALKAN WANDERS. DIFFERENT INDUSTRY, IDENTICAL MACHINE - AND IT IS THE MACHINE THAT FOUND YOU.

What we do

We do all the outreach for you - finding the right shippers, writing the emails, handling every reply - and book the sales calls on your calendar. Your side stays light: one kickoff call, approve the shipper profile, then take the calls. Four stages:

PHASE 01 — Weeks 1–2

Setup & infrastructure

Get the engine ready to send.

- Purchase the domains and mailboxes you'll send from
- Stand up the deliverability stack - your own domain never gets touched
- Run a warmup so inboxes land in primary, not spam
- Hand you an infrastructure ready to send at volume

PHASE 02 — Weeks 1–2

Shipper profile

Narrow until the target list is unmistakably yours.

- Define the shipper: standing volume, contracted rates, not spot
- Lock modes and lanes - flatbed, van, reefer; Florida plus your Laredo runs
- Screen out over-dimensional and overweight freight you don't want
- You approve the profile before a single email goes out

PHASE 03 — Weeks 3–6

Finding the best angle

Send slowly, learn fast, keep only what converts.

- Build 3–5 message angles for your offer
- Send them against the shippers that match the profile
- Measure reply quality, not just open rates
- Scale the winning angle to your capacity - never past it

PHASE 04 — Week 7 onward

Booked calls, at your pace

Real shippers on your calendar, already warm.

- Roll the winning angle out - paced to your capacity, not blasted
- Replies handled instantly in your voice and tone
- Booking + reminder sequence so the calls actually happen
- A one-page brief on every lead before you take the call

FROM APPROVAL TO BOOKED

01 Profile — APPROVED LANES & MODES → 02 Outreach — PERSONALISED AT VOLUME → 03 Qualified — DECISION-MAKERS CONTRACTED FREIGHT → 04 SALES CALLS BOOKED

Inclusion / Exclusion

INCLUDED

- Shipper profile - modes, lanes, volume shape; your approval before launch
- Personalised outreach to logistics & shipping decision-makers at manufacturers and plants
- Email infrastructure - domains, inboxes, warmup, deliverability
- Every reply handled, in your voice and tone
- Booking + reminder sequences - we chase the no-shows, not you
- A one-page brief on each lead before the call

NOT INCLUDED

- The sales call itself - you take it, you close it
- Quoting the rate or pricing the load
- Carrier sourcing and capacity - that's your side of the desk
- Post-call follow-up and chasing the contract
- Spot-load-board work - we target contracted freight, deliberately
- Authority, insurance and compliance paperwork

Process & timeline

Shippers don't switch brokers the week you email them. The pipeline takes about two months to fill - which is exactly why it starts now, not when you need the freight.

WEEK 1	Kickoff. Voice + offer scoping. Shipper profile drafted. Lanes, modes and exclusions locked with you.
WEEK 1–2	Infrastructure warm. Profile approved. Domains warmed. Mailboxes set up. Your sign-off before launch.
WEEK 3–6	First batch sent. Testing what resonates. Learning phase - see which angle gets shippers talking.
WEEK 7–8	Best angle scales. First calls booked. Warm shippers land on your calendar, brief in hand.
DAY 60	Target: 3 booked sales calls with shippers inside your approved profile. You told us one more account like the cement plant is what you're after. At 10-20% margin on daily loads, that's what this is built to find.

Pricing

MONTHLY RETAINER Covers infrastructure - domains, mailboxes, deliverability	$750 / month
PER BOOKED CALL Paid only when the call happens	$150 / call
SETUP FEE No upfront commitment	None

TRANSPARENCY · COST & MARGIN

The $750/mo covers our infrastructure cost. We make our margin on the $150 per booked call, which means we only earn when you do.

QUALITY GUARDRAIL

Billable calls = decision-makers inside the approved shipper profile, who show up. No-shows aren't billed. Anyone outside the profile isn't billed.

3-CALL WALKAWAY

Your first three calls are your test drive.

If the shippers aren't right, you walk - no contract, no charge for those three calls, and the shipper profile we built is yours to keep.

For context: the alternative is your own hours on the phone, or the load boards - where the rate is the only thing you compete on, and the shipper leaves the moment someone quotes lower.

Why this fits Andy's Brokerage

YOU ALREADY SAW IT WORK

This proposal exists because the same engine found you, wrote to you, and booked our call. You are the demo.

RISK SITS WITH US

Performance-based after the infrastructure. No-shows and anyone outside your approved profile don't get billed. We only earn when a real shipper shows up.

CONTRACTED, NOT SPOT

We target shippers with standing volume and agreed rates - the cement-plant shape - not the re-quote-every-morning crowd you already have enough of.

EASY OUT

Three calls, then you decide. Walk away and you owe nothing beyond the infrastructure you already used.

Next step

If it's a yes, we send a simple pilot agreement and a payment link - no long contract. A 20-minute kickoff call confirms your voice, your lanes and the shipper profile, and onboarding starts the same week.
